

Karen Durlach

Bringing years of graphic design experience to her claywork, Karen creates both functional and decorative ceramics. She works in a small studio space at home and fires with a group in Worcester, Massachusetts, concentrating on the atmospheric results possible in a gas-fired soda kiln.

Organic forms and textures in nature influence her pottery and she grows specific plants in North Grosvenordale, CT for impressing on her ceramics. “I have always been fascinated by the minute details captured in my close-up photography of rocks, shells, plant and animal life. They provide endless inspiration for carving and tactile exploration.”

Karen earned her BFA from the University of Michigan.
